

DIGNAN PORCH

NOTHING BAD WILL EVER HAPPEN - CD/LP

Optimism is infectious, and there can be few more optimistic statements than the title of the new album from Dignan Porch: Nothing Bad Will Ever Happen. As you listen to the warm-hearted, weirdo pop within, as you're drawn into their world, you might be inclined to agree with them.

Nothing Bad Will Ever Happen is Dignan Porch's second album, though in many ways it's their first. 2010's debut, Tendrils, was written and recorded as a solo concern by singer Joe Walsh. Here, he's joined by the full band, comprising brother Sam Walsh plus close friends Ben Goodwin, Hayley Akins and Stephen Keane.

Recorded at Homerton's Sound Savers studio with Henry Withers (Lovers / Sharm El Shakes) Mark Jasper (Bastard Sword) and Alex Clegg (Breathe Out), the album was taped live on reel-to-reel tape with minimal overdubs. The resulting album is a thing of raw beauty, its melancholy melodies shining through the fuzz and filth, singers Joe and Hayley crushing you with emotion throughout.

RELEASE DATE: AUGUST 14, 2012

'Dignan Porch just make it sound effortless. Well, it is effortless for them. It's real. It's a pure crystallised idea, boiled down to something very simple.' - The Line of Best Fit
