

Psychic Baos

Society's Lien on Peace of Mind 7"EP

Wake up, garbage people, the rooster is crowing! First off, your morning dose: Psychic Baos. Tastes good, doesn't it? And it takes you there, too. So close your eyes and step into the fry-daddy's dream: You're on a muddy BMX track in eastern Tennessee and there's a band playing what sounds like the Chocolate Watch Band melting in hellfire. A man named Will Fist is screaming a fully-blown scream, and zoom goes some wily pfink on a soiled banana bike. That's your daily medicine!

I think you should be quite awake by now. The hypnotic rhythms waxed in this stereo resin have a great effect upon the listener. (I lost gravity during the organ solo and I haven't even peaked yet.) I'd say this is real rock'n'roll, wouldn't you? Enjoy it. Don't worry about the false prophets of car commercial garage rock. This isn't that, this is Psychic Baos.

Take it from a satisfied customer: "I listen to this single every day before I start the daily grind, and it really keeps me going. One day my record player was fried and I didn't get my dose before work -- my boss told me I looked 'sleepy'. This stuff really works!"

So remember... Never leave the house without a hit of Baos
