Doug Paisley will release a new full length in the fall but for now we present Golden Embers, a collection of songs recorded over two days in December. These songs were played in clubs, barns, during radio sessions and on festival grounds as Paisley toured the world in support of Constant Companion, his critically acclaimed 2nd album. It's a beloved record and some of the backing players from those sessions return: Bazil Donovan (bass), Leslie Feist (vocals) and Robbie Grunwald (piano) are joined here by John Showman (fiddle), Joey Wright (mandolin) and Dana Snell (drums). If you slept on Companion, then we're sorry, but use this affordably priced EP to get acquainted with one of our finest working songwriters..

Press for Constant Companion:

"This is a musician, you instinctively feel, who's in deep... There's something sure-footed and ageless about Paisley's simple, acoustic-and-piano songs, lent further authenticity by an old-school voice that drifts easily between folk and country. At times he's like '70's JJ Cale, all husk and gentle intonation, at others with the earthy chill of Hoyt Axton and Will Oldham" (4 stars) - Uncut

"A quiet wonder" – The New Yorker

"It's a record of subtle beauty, of a soft ache, the kind that seeps right into you and, before you know it, it's settled deeper than you'd have thought possible upon the first spin." - Popmatters

"One of the year's best singer-songwriter albums" (4 stars) – Rolling Stone
