Lee Harvey Oswald Band. The facts. A trio from Texas comprised of Zowie Fenderblast, Dredge, and James Meat who released their third and last album Blastronaut on Touch and Go Records in 1996. Comprised of 11-songs, the Lee Harvey Oswald Band's 36-minute magnum opus is now available on vinyl for the first time ever – 20 years later. Well worth the wait. You weren't ready yet. You still might not be. Brace yourself.

"Blastronaut still stands as the best album you've never heard. If the Foo Fighters wrote this album the world would be wanking in the streets."
– Ginger Wildheart

"Blastronaut was a keystone album in mid-90's Turbo circles. The masterful songwriting and glammyness struck home with us."
– "Happy Tom" of Turbonegro

"...the second-best rock album of the nineties, better than Nevermind ..."
– S.L. Duff, Lost in the Grooves, 2005

"The glam-bastard offspring of David Bowie, Johnny Thunders, Mick Ronson, and Iggy Pop, LHOB singer Zowie Fenderblast wrangles his trio through another dozen songs about sex, drugs, rock'n'roll, and, er, space travel... may induce you to grow out your buzz cut and enjoy life again ."
– Magnet, 1996

"Lee Harvey Oswald Band's swan song... a true glam rock stomper – at a particularly rock-hostile moment in time. Combining the fashion sense of the New York Dolls, the vocal style of alien-era David Bowie, and some grinding guitar work a la Johnny Thunders, Blastronaut rocks out from the opening notes until the final fade out."
– AllMusic, 4 stars

"Pure teenage pants-dropping perversity... Zowie Fenderblast and company, a trio, have that 'We don't give a shit' attitude that is so important when it comes to naked, throbbing punk rock."
– Flagpole Magazine, 1996

"...arguably, the record of the year..."
– Rip Magazine, 1996
